

My visit to the Schoolhouse Children's Museum

Social Story created in collaboration with FAU Center for Autism and Related Disabilities

I'm going to visit the Schoolhouse Children's Museum!

I arrive at the Museum and stop at the front counter to check in.

I may need to stand in line quietly and wait my turn.

I see lots of fun toys on shelves at the Gift Shop. I can look but not play with them. They are toys that people can buy to take home and play with.

I see a tall red lighthouse.

If I knock on the door, a robot named Hannibal will open the window way up high and speak to me. Then he will go back inside the lighthouse and close his window.

There are other children playing too and if it gets too noisy my caregiver can take me to a quieter area.

I might need to be patient and wait my turn or share with other children.
I can play in another area while I wait.

My caregiver will stay with me while I play in the Museum.

I keep my shoes on when I play in the Museum.

Downstairs I see lots of places I can play. I see a tractor, a big cow and chickens and pigs in the barn that I can play with. I can play with the tractor and trains and in a farm house.

I can have a tea party.

I can play downstairs and I can play upstairs too.

To play upstairs, I can climb up the stairs or take the elevator and go up.

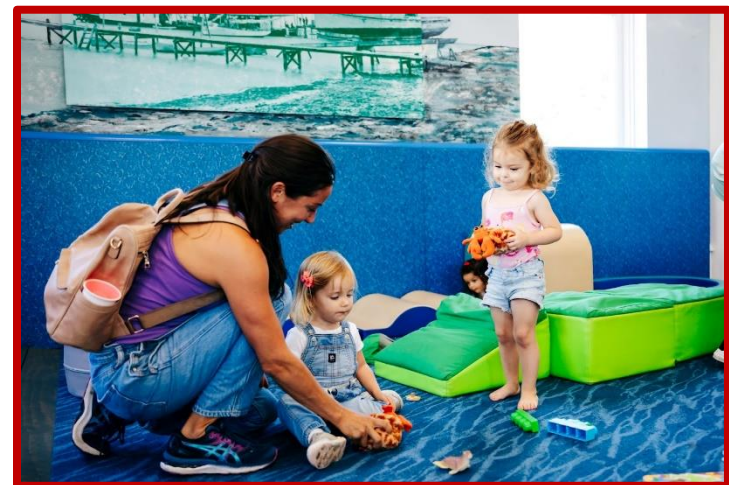

The Museum has bathrooms downstairs and upstairs that I can use.

I can bring a snack from home to eat if I get hungry. I can eat my snack at the snack table in the lobby upstairs or at the table in front of the Museum.

Upstairs in Water World I can climb and play. I can play with puzzles too.

In Main Street I can play in the Post Office and in Doc Weems' Office where there are lots of babies to play with.

I can play in the Murray's General Store and even drive the car.

I had fun at the Museum and found lots of places to play!
